

Hot

Students work in their teams to brainstorm possible answers to a question. Each student states an answer and then writes it on a slip of paper and places it on their table. The aim is to cover the table with slips of paper within an allocated time. This is a great structure to use when the teacher wants to develop a bank of answers that can be shared with the whole class.

Thoughts